

Dresscode

What to wear on a Trail

1. Jeans, slim fit – no designer jeans like DIESEL or REPLAY. Levi's don't fit, ideal are WRANGLER COWBOY CUT.
2. Shirts with a long sleeve to protect your arms, somewhat heavier fabric.
3. Cowboy boots or similar – the jeans should cover the shaft, so nothing can fall into your boots.
4. A warm jacket for rather cool evenings
5. Jogging suit or similar for the night
6. boot socks, in order to prevent chafing of your boots. Untrained riders take ladies tights or light weight ski underwear to protect legs against chafing.
7. Cowboy hat – one of the essentials. The wide brim protects against the hot sun and the rain. Bring a hat protection, if you like your hat to stay in shape.
8. Formal dress for the brunch at the HYATT REGENCY. (Not included in every trail)

Equipment provided by Miller Ranch Lightweight traveling bag Sleeping bag Insulating mattress Shower towel Rain gear Canteen Flashlight Knife Saddle Bags Not to forget Camera including film, batteries etc – There is no possibility to buy anything on the trail. Prescription medicin.

Good sun glasses with string attached. Glasses and spare glasses – spare contacts. Riders wearing contacts should have spare glasses with them, because sometimes contacts can be obnoxious, particularly in heavy dust.

Sun lotion with high protection Items recommended above can be purchased in Scottsdale on the first or second day of the trail.
